New Delhi: Two of the "deadliest" varieties of malarial disease have surfaced in northeast India, which health officials warned travellers visiting the region to be vigilant and seek treatment if they feel ill. The "Kelchas" form of malaria, which is caused by the species Plasmodium vivax, is highly drug-resistant and often fatal. The "Kelghat" form, which has emerged in northeast India after 40 years, is more serious, as it is resistant to chloroquine. The disease is spread by the Anopheles mosquito, also known as the Asian tiger mosquito. "People travelling to any region must be vigilant and get themselves treated if they feel unwell," said Surekha Madhav, a senior doctor with the National Institute of Communicable Diseases (NICD). The disease has spread because of the local climatic conditions and poor health facilities in the region, said Suresh Dham, director of the National Centre for Disease Control. US, Iran Step Closer to New Nuclear Deal Iran reached a compromise with the Obama administration to accept key elements of a nuclear deal, the two sides announced on Wednesday, as Washington sought to win enough allies for the accord to survive a raft of western sanctions. The deal, which still needs to be approved by Iran's parliament, needs a simple majority of the 290 lawmakers to back it to go ahead, but American officials were buoyed by comments from foreign ministers of Britain, France, Germany, China and Russia, as well as from a significant ally of Iran, Saudi Arabia, which spoke of its support. The US, Iran's arch-foe, had demanded Iran stop enriching uranium to a level closer to weaponisation. As a result, the Atomic Energy Organisation of Iran will allow the UN's nuclear watchdog to visit its Iranian nuclear plants and the centrifuges needed to produce nuclear fuel will be frozen. The US said
